These inexpensive stocking-friendly cedar wood balls are a tried-and-tested pest repellent that can be spread out in wardrobes and doors to keep moths from ravaging cosy cashmere knits and the rest. Yes, they may be greeted with a confused look upon opening, but down the line, he'll thank you. Swap a simple greeting for a big ol' 'howdy partner' with this bourbon whiskey turned renegade thanks to a delicious habanero spirit infusion. Spicing up his traditional Old Fashioned and Whiskey Sour, the bottle is even shaped like a cowboy's hip flask, making it a supercool addition to drink trolleys. A word of warning, though: a couple of glasses in and you'll all be singing the song from which it takes its name. All together now! "Laaaa, la, la la la la...".Reusable water bottles and travel mugs are a dime a dozen these days, and the vast majority hardly make for exciting gifts. Enter Larq, a brand that's doing things a little bit differently. Negating the need to pour from the filter, Larq's PureVis bottle is a first of its kind with its own unique UV-C purification system in the lid that eliminates 99.9999 per cent of bio-contaminants. Add to that the fact that it looks plenty sleeker than ordinary bottles and keeps water cool up to 24 hours, and this is a present that's sure to have him geeking out. Nothing beats a little something shiny for a gift, and for that we look to Tatteossian. High on many a GQ editor's wish list for 2022 are these beautiful rhodium-plated roulette wheel cufflinks. Not just a casino-themed final flourish to tailored looks, when held at 180 degrees they can be used as actual roulette wheels - giving us serious Drake vibes (see his Jacob & Co Astronomia Casino watch). Just the thing to be bringing the party to every wedding and red-carpet function the new year has in store. A preppy grey sweater is an off-duty men's essential, easily pared up with the collar of an Oxford shirt popping over the neckline or down worn over a crewneck T-shirt for any occasion. Arket's is a classic that won't break the bank, made from a mid-weight 340 GSM fabric that'll see him through every season. The first foray into fragrance from French male-maintenance brand Horace is an instant win. A masculine scent, it combines spicy and woody notes that are perfect for the winter season, and as an added bonus, it comes with a set of alphabet stickers to customise the bottle with your giftee's name or initials.£55 for 50ml at horace.coHandy is a Norwegian sex tech start-up that has been getting the launch of its flagship device prepped right in time for 2022. The new player's device has shot to the top of the automated masturbation totem in next to no time with its premium-looking device, which promises to level up solo play with settings to alter stroke length, grip and speed as well as the ability to move in motion to movies. And reader, we ain't talkin' bout just any kind of movies... If Elvis Presley were still around to sing about his prized blue suede shoes, we imagine they'd look a little something like this. A statement colourway for the much loved Birkenstock Boston silhouette, these eye-catching clogs are crying out for a spot in his off-duty wardrobe. He could have all the expensive creams and serums money can buy, but no man looks well-groomed with unsightly hairs sprouting from his nose, ears, and eyebrows. We've taken many a trimmer for a spin and none quite matches up to the latest from BaByliss Men's Super-X range. Easy to use and with a feel that's much more premium (dare we say, even sink-side friendly) than most nose hair trimmers out there, a quick once-over in the mornings will have him looking prim and propper. £24.99 at johnlewis.com & amazon.co.ukLet's face it, we all could do with a good eye serum after the past few years. Battling everything from fine lines to signs of fatigue and aging, this one by Kiehl's is an easy win for any gifting opportunities that might arise, whatever the celebration or season. Formulated with ten per cent pure vitamin C, to help brighten the skin and fade dark sports and hyaluronic acid and glycerin for hydration, it is gentle enough for the delicate under-eye area and also suitable for contact lens users. Trust us, he'll need it for the inevitable return-to-the-office... If you're going to treat him to something shiny, Alighieri is a jeweller that you'll fail to go wrong with. We're especially taken by Rosh Mahtani's zodiac motif 24kt gold-plated necklaces. With the brand's latest Emberton Bluetooth speaker, the retro aesthetic does not compromise contemporary features to rival even the most cutting-edge sound systems and even comes with a directional control knob that adds a signature warm sound that's perfect for their signature playlists. And, at only 700g, IPX-7 water resistance and no fewer than 20 hours of portable playtime, it's perfect for packing up and bringing with you on a weekend break. There'll be no lockdown-inspired Yeti-like growth this year - and this standout body hair groomer by Meridian is here to make sure of it. An especially easy-on-the-eye bit of bathroom tech, there's more to The Trimmer than its slick design. The waterproof multitasker will easily cut through coarse hair without a tug and will do so mid-shower thanks to rust-resistant ceramic blades. With only two attachments that cater to lengths from three to 12mm and an easy 90 minutes to full charge, this nifty little device is sure to make 2022 their bestgroomed year yet. £51 at meridiangrooming.comHarry Styles' new beauty brand, Pleasing, recently launched to typical fan mania, and in amongst it all was us at GQ. One of the signatures for the label is its nail polishes, of which this set contains all four shades - Perfect Pearl, Pearly Tops, Granny's Pink Pearl and our personal favourite, Inky Pearl. It's no secret that painted nails have been the ultimate accessory for men in recent seasons, and with Harry Styles' take arriving just in time, long may this trend continue. When it comes to cosy cashmere, it doesn't get more luxe than The Elder Statesman. And while the fabric can come with stuffy connotations, the brand is known to keep its knits extremely playful. Case in point, this multicoloured, shawl-lapelled striped cardigan, is an immaculate layering piece that'll keep his 'fits plush and playful on even the most dismal of days. The Hamilton watch worn by Robert Pattinson in 2020's Tenet marks Christopher Nolan's third time working with the brand on screen. And while up to 30 iterations were said to be used as props on the set of the time-bending movie, the real thing is yet to be mass-produced. Thankfully, the black titanium BeLOWZERO is a very close alternative, making for the ultimate horological/blockbuster crossover gift. £1,495 at hamiltonwatch.comInspired by the deck jackets once issued to the US Navy for warmth, Triumph Motorcycles' Marstone jacket is one of the achingly cool label's most sought after of the season. Lined with faux fur for all his seasonal layering needs and finished with authentic utilitarian details, this is a wardrobe addition that'll serve him well for many a season to come. £350 at triumphmotorcycles.co.ukFor the hard-to-gift, the trusty Toblerone is always something to fall back on. But if you want to hand over something bespoke (as opposed to blatantly last minute) you can purchase a bar of the legendary Swiss chocolate with personalised packaging, care of Selfridges. Thoughtful and tasty. Make him the best dressed at every roller disco of 2022 with these exceptional designer skates in Bottega's trademark green. Italian-made in luxuriously smooth leather, if they're not vowing to switch up their commute, they'll sit very pretty on display as a collector's item. A good bottle of wine never goes amiss at a gathering, so long as there's a bit of thought to it (whatever's left at the service station en route to proceedings simply won't do) Personalising your choice to your giftee, Good Pair Days takes you through a series of simple questions to match up the perfect bottle - from the price you're willing to pay to details such as their favourite type of chocolate to better tailor the tasting notes - before serving up the closest matches for your consideration. Every household could use a bit more joy, and few designers get the assignment quite as literally as Christopher Kane. The More Joy line spans everything from doormats to pyjamas, but at the top of our wishlist is this intarsia wool-blend cushion, which will serve as a timely reminder that joy is not just for every time he settles into a Netflix binge.£175 at matchesfashion.comAccessories like wash bags are best done timeless, and one brand that knows a thing or two about style that stands the test of time is Bennett Winch. Outfitters to James Bond himself (Daniel Craig is presented a tux in the label's iconic suit carrier holdall in No Time To Die), Bennett Winch's Dopp kit/wash bag is an elegant affair for your on-the-go grooming with plenty of pockets to store your belongings and a clip-out wet compartment for your shaving bits - all encased in a luxurious, full-grain Italian veg-tanned leather. While any number of fragrant Byredo bottles are sure to be well received in a gift wrap, we're favouring the rather more snuggly release that is the B Blanket. The product sits in the brand's 'ByProduct by Byredo' range, comprising anything outside the confines of 'beauty' but still reflecting Byredo's foundational philosophies of creativity and finesse. Taking its design cues from Ivy League varsity jackets - an iconic piece of American fashion history - the blanket is stamped with the brand's signature B and comes made from a cosy blend of virgin wool and cashmere - just the thing to doze off under while the Netflix binge commences. A man can never have too many bow ties, and if he wants to add a real touch of class to his eveningwear then this pre-tied bow from BOSS will do just the job. Italian-crafted and made from Jacquard-woven silk, it's an unshouty but undoubtedly elegant accessory and a fine addition to any wardrobe. Dreary winter days leave a lot to be desired when it comes to glowing complexions. Likewise, offsetting dark circles and blemishes can always use a bit of a leg-up in the oncoming spring season. While any good makeup brand is perfectly fine for men's use, War Paint's range has been specially formulated for men's skin and comes in gender-neutral packaging that can be slightly less intimidating for male usage. The tinted moisturiser offers a light pick-me-up to introduce him to his new favourite beauty hack. £22 at warpaintformen.comAfter a long stint of working from home, the bulk of us now have clarity on the future of our office lives, be they back to business as usual or hybridized, which means now is just the time to start thinking about the commute again. Don't go back to life on busy tube carriages, nose pressed up to your fellow passengers' 'pits, and invest in a two-wheeled commuter to be proud of. Steed's fixed gear bikes hit that sweet spot of aesthetically on-point and excellent value, designed for swift, stylish and easy city travelling. Just the thing to take the edge off the return to your desk. Find us a shoe that screams party season more than these Croc-effect Chelsea boots and we'll eat our sequinned shirts. No gift-wrapped shoebox will hit harder than these Tom Ford numbers which will bring a healthy helping of rock 'n' roll to every look. For the arty man in your life, a subscription to one of Frieze's new membership plans would allow him to go even deeper into his passion in 2022. As a Frieze 91 member (depending on which plan you choose) you get VIP invites and entry to Frieze art fairs and events, access to workshops and lectures on collecting, and priority booking and out-of-hours access to Frieze partner galleries. Also included is a subscription to Frieze's print magazine and a dedicated monthly E-newsletter. Clark Kent, eat your heart out. If they've just about squinted their way through the previous year or so, a new pair of glasses from Cutler and Gross will not go amiss. We're especially fond of these exaggerated square frames, inspired by an archival Laurence Corner Army Surplus Store design. Not sure it'll suit their face shape? The brand's virtual try-on service allows you to upload an image of your giftee to put that to the test. £365 at cutlerandgross.comWinter cosiness doesn't get better than shearling outerwear. Launched just in time for a furry gift-wrapped treat, Boda Skins' new Polar 3.0 is high on our wish list. Handcrafted from velvety-smooth merino shearling with contrasting nappa leather detail, it also uses an innovative self-cleaning technology to resist dirt and dust that'll keep it looking pristine for many seasons to come. Everyone appreciates how plants can liven up a home, but if you're the indecisive type, how are you meant to choose? Well, with Leaf Envy you don't need to. A subscription gets you a new plant every month, handpicked and curated by a plant styling team that pays close attention to trends and season. In no time at all, they'll be living in a leafy jungle and loving it. A luxurious merging of whisky and chocolate, this unique single malt would make for an ideal accompaniment to whatever film he sleepily settles into come 10pm on his big day. Crafted from a combination of European and American oak casks, its distinctly chocolaty aroma, flavours and colour mean the Scotch pairs perfectly with fine chocolates, and even the recyclable gift box was made using discarded husks from cacao pods. Decanters tend to conjure images of stuffy wood-panelled gentleman's clubs. Not the case with this much much cooler iteration by Jonathan Adler. Swapping cut crystal for a rocketship-inspired design crafted from porcelain and 16k gold, it'll make a far greater impact at dinner parties or sitting pretty on a drinks trolley, filled with his favourite bottle of scotch. £200 at brownsfashion.comPatrón was already a stand-out bottle for your drinks trolley, filled with his favourite bottle of scotch. £200 at brownsfashion.comPatrón was already a stand-out bottle for your drinks trolley. Add to its winning formula. Not only is the bottle a decorative dream, but with every bottle sold, 22 new trees will be planted in a devastated region of the Amazon, so you'll be working towards getting the world's largest nature corridor back to the tropical paradise depicted on the box. Light up your giftee's interiors with this insanely cool collaboration between neon-light brand Yellowpop and artist Keith Haring. Launching eight new lights taking cues from some of Haring's most recognisable works (see also "Barking Dog" and "Radiant Baby", our favourite has got to be the "Twisted Man" in room-warming yellow. Make like the man in guestion and secure one while stocks last. Ostens's new Préperation Oil Collection brings together the five original ingredients of its Eau de Parfums in oil form. That's rose, patchouli, jasmine, cedarwood and vanilla bean for the unfamiliar, each presented in a limited edition wooden box to be layered over fragrance or massaged onto clean skin for a spot of olfactory experimentation. Often birthdays and special occasions sneak up with us, leaving it feeling as though there's no time to buy, but alas here's a wardrobe addition no man would need a gift receipt for. You may recognise this jumper from the latest Bond instalment - an immaculate piece of menswear drawing inspiration from military apparel and in a very flattering ribbed construction at that. Consider your gifting sorted... not stirred. If they're looking to join the new year fitness brigade, here's a pro tip you can pass on: those HIIT sessions will mean diddly squat if they ain't fuelling them properly. The fix? That most popular of boutique studios has partnered with Hermosa protein for a gift box made up of a three-class pass to Barry's Bootcamp and one jar of vegan or whey Hermosa protein to really reap the gains. It's even delivered with a personalized gift note for some motivational coaching. Exclusive to Selfridges, Telmont's Réserve Brut is clean on the palate and expresses aromas of shortbread, caramelised apple and a subtle dusting of ground ginger. A very celebratory fizz indeed. Fact: the Bloody Mary is a cocktail made for hungover mornings. The only stumbling block? Mustering the energy to make one. From the actually-very-tasty canned cocktail brand, Bloody Drinks, the It's Bloody Personal Box boasts four ready-to-drink, personalised cans of Bloody Mary ripe for the refrigerating, complete with essential accompaniments - a tin of Bloody Mary salt, a can of Perello Picante olive and pickle mix and a jar of flavoured nuts to snack on while you drink. £30 at bloodydrinks.co.ukOliver Spencer is a designer who knows how to collaborate and his partnership with folding-bicycle maker Brompton is a prime example. Engineered for only the most stylish of the commuter peloton and growing on the brands' well-received Brompton blazer last year, the latest output is much more sportswear influenced, balancing form and function in a lightweight Italian performance cloth and with a retroreflective thread stitched in a grid pattern for optimal visibility, without the bright neon lines that are so often emblazoned on cycling jackets. You won't catch us cycling in anything else.£389 at oliverspencer.co.ukWhat man doesn't love beanie season when tens of minutes are shaved off morning hairstyling routines in place of timeless winter headwear. Treat someone to something that bit more luxurious this year care of Trunk Clothiers, whose AW12 styles are crafted from super-luxe cashmere and done out in beautifully rich colourways (our favourite being this bottle green).£90 at trunkclothiers.comOne brand you can be confident in gifting in 2022 is August & Piers. A relative newcomer to the "candleverse", its debut collection only arrived last November but fast got picked up by the likes of Jodie Comer and Rosie Huntington-Whiteley. Muse is the scent that miss Huntington-Whiteley likes the most and we agree: its blend of bergamot, benzoin and vanilla is exceptional. A collaborative effort between The Maison's three leading artisans, this complex cognac has a fruity profile, exhibiting chords of fig and hazelnut. And at 42 per cent ABV, the Tercet is The Maison's highest ever proof. A treat. £99 at fortnumandmason.comDon't let their next iPhone fall fowl to scuffs and cracked screens. If you're buying for someone who's always first in line to the Apple store when a new release is on its way, this Montblanc iPhone 13 case is a slick and stylish way to christen their new pride and joy. A typically elegant affair from the brand, its calf-skin Saffiano print leather is as sophisticated as it gets, elevated with Montblanc's signature emblem front and centre. Get him set for a jet-setting the most luxe way we know how: with this three-piece Thom Browne travel pouch in signature TB stripes will guarantee them a place in the first-class lounge, regardless of what their ticket says. £1,280 at brownsfashion.comSome overcoats just don't look right without a check scarf to frame things. And we're not just talking any check scarf to frame things. And we're not just talking any check scarf to frame things. British heritage starting in 1767. Check patterns are the Yorkshire brand's forte and this cobalt-blue windowpane number is a case in point. A classic design that won't feel tired come next winter. In an age where iPhone cameras are so often regarded just as good as any compact model, one brand for whom it'd be sacrilege to draw such comparisons is Leica. The Q2 launched in 2019 and has been a favourite among amateur photographers ever since. Dubbed "the lazy man's Leica", this is the kind of camera you point and shoot without even looking, then scroll through your results in smug street photographer pride. And need we even mention how very cool one looks with a Q2 strapped around one's chest? £4,675 at leica-camera.comSwap sprouts for sourdough with a bit of kit that's sure to have been on his wishlist for an extra hot minute now. Gozney's Roccbox pizza oven is a garden must-have for the summer of '22, with a dual-fuel design that flicks between luxurious wood firing and convenient gas burning. With a safe-touch silicone exterior, it's safe and easy to use, while the retractable legs and detachable burner mean he'll be able to level up al fresco cookouts away from home, too. It's the perfect upgrade to sad Trangia stoves come his next UK camping trip.
